Washington, D. C., February 3.—Representatives Faton, Lamb and Rice, the sub-committee of the to them, calling upon the Secretary of State for such information as he might have relative to the connection of any American citizen, or citizens, with explosions in London, The sub-committee, while it viewed the use of dynamite with abhorrence, held that to adopt resolutions of the character referred to, would be an acknowledgment that the citizens of the United States were parties to the conspiracy ngainst England and connected with the recent explosions in London. It is believed that Congress ought not to assume such a position. The report was tabled. The subject in another form will be considered again at a meeting of the committee next Thursday.

that neither they nor Cleveland will think it wise that they should leave the Senate. RETURNING THE ALERT. The House and Naval Affairs Committee will re-port the resolution authorizing the President to re-turn the steamer Alert to the British Government with the suggestion that England may need it at some future time for similar service.

THE XLVIIITH CONGRESS.

Senate.

Senate.

Washington, February 5.—Before the Senate met this morning Senator Riddleberger's desk was the center of attention on the part of visitors and such Senators as were in the Chamber. A beautiful floral harp rested upon it, a tribute, as is presumed, of Mr. Riddleberger's Irish admirers. The harp was over two feet high, with a frame composed of tea roses, japonics, hyacinta, beisteropes, and migrophetics. The hars was of analiss, emphoriss, fillies, and other rare exough. The satrings of the harp were wreathed with smillar.

"Is that a Weish harp?" Senator Dawes asked Senator Jones of Nevada.

"No," Senator Jones of Nevada.

"No," Senator Jones of Meyada.

Prin. Senator Jone Leveld, "It is the harp of Prin."

Senator Miller of New York, presented the credentials of Wm. M. Evarts elected United States Senator from the State of New York. The credentials, which were unusually lengthy, were read. During the reading of the credentials Senator Hoar remarked that in his judgment a certificate from the Governor of a State, simply saying that the person named in the certificate was duly elected Senator of the United States from the particular State named, for a given term, was a sufficient credential according to the usages of the Senate and the laws of the United States.

The Chair (Senator Edmunds) stated that the papers did not contain any certificate from the Governor as required by the act of Congress. The papers did not contain any certificate from the Governor as required by the act of Congress. The papers due to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

The Illinois Legislature Fooling Away

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch. Springfield, Ill., February 3.—There was a little ircus in the Senate to-day over Kelly's resolution fixing the date of a joint session for the election of United States Senator, corresponding with the date fied by the Constitution. The Republicans wanted to hold it off to see what the Democrats may do in the House with the contested seat cases, which materially affect the election, but owing to absenteeism, were in the minority. They prevented the adoption of the resolution by breaking a quorum when the Democrats forced a vote on it. Mr. Hogan of Pulaski introduced a bill for a system of permanent State roads, which appropriates a sum to be equal to the amount paid into the State Treasury in two years by the Illinois Central Raifroad, which is to be divided among the counties which take advantage of the act by levying a special tax of 40 cents on the $100, to be added to the State fund. Sa Marion, of Cook, introduced a bill giving school boards power to exercise the right of eminent domain in locating schools.

Extra editions of newspapers containing cable dispatches from New York, giving details of the shooting of O'Donovan Rossa, are selling like wildfire on the streets in every city and town throughout Great Britain. Nearly every person seems jubilant over the announcement that the alleged chief of the dynamiters has had some of his own restlement types him.

LONDON, February E.—Considerable excitement was produced to-day by the announcement that the friends of Cunnhigham, accused of having caused the explosion at the Tower of London, were already him. When taken before a magistrate the prisoner said his name was Goodyear, and that he had recently been discharged from the lunatic asylum. A package which the prisoner was seen to drop in the Gorenor's bank, was a small parcel of paper on which were a number of figures. The police declare that the prisoner is known to them; that he had served a term of imprisonment, and that his testimony in regard to himself is false. places, and that the fractures were sufficient to cause death. The second mate testified that Armstrong abused the pflot who took the ship out from Havre, and when the pilot was about to leave the Wilmington and extended his hand in parting to Armstrong, the latter refused to take it and said: "We'll shake hands when dead." Other testimony was adduced, showing that just previous to the fatal quarrel between the captain and the crew he complained of being ill and swallowed forty drops of laudanum. After this he attacked the crew and shot wildly at them. They closed in to overpower, and disarmed him. He fought savagely, and the carpenter struck him on the head with a belaying pin, and then assisted in putting him in manacles and removing him to the cabin. In the cabin, Armstrong revived, and before his death, shouted for his release. The crew during this time, were attempting to heal his wounds.

NEW ENGLAND EXCURSIONISTS.

How They Were Entertained on the Floor of the Merchants' Exchange.

The New England excursionists who are en route for the World's Fair at New Orleans were called upon by a committee from the Merchants' Exchange and escorted upon the floor this morning. The presence of this party of ladies and gentlemen created a wild furor among the members. The bulls and bears in the pit howeld their loudest and strove to deaten their resistors with their clayers. This and bears in the pit howled their loudest and strove to deafen their visitors with their clamor. This part of the show was watched with great interest by the Eastern people, the ladies particularly seeming to take great delight in the antics of the animals. The mashers and dudes on Change got some grewt work in on the ladies. Deploying into line along the telegraph counters and desks and striking elegant attitudes they posed all the time the ladies were present and allowed them to admire their fine forms and beautiful faces at their pleasure. The regular call was watched with great interest by the visitors, and they viewed with pleasure the electric colored lights around the fountain, which were turned on for them. President Haarstick, Vice-President S. W. Cobb, E. O. Stanard, J. C. Ewald, D. P. Girer, D. R. Francis and D. P. Rowiand escorted the visitors on the floor and explained the workings of the commercial machinery to them.

THE CITY VERY COMFORTABLE, The Missouri Pacific Loan Affair Reaching

a Crisis. scraped cash in the vaults of the Bank of Comgreat many years ago as a loan to the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. These bonds were due day before yesterday, and anybody owning any of them can get its full face value for mere presentation. Who holds the bonds now is not known, but not improbably the company itself has bought a lot of them up. Meanwhile, the current revenue of the city is short just that $700,000. It was expected that the railroad company would pay the money to the city when the bonds became due, but thus far the company has given no indication as to whether it proposes to pay or not. In order to guard against a financial strait in case of the company's refusal at the last moment, the Assembly a few weeks ago passed a bill authorizing the Comptroller to issue and sell $700,000 4 per cent bonds, to raise money to provide for this redemption. Accordingly, unless the Missouri Pacific people, within the next four or five days, send to the City Hall their check for $700,000, the 4 per cent bonds of the city will be issued and sold. Meanwhile the city desired and sold. Meanwhile the company holds that, under the terms of the loan, it has the right to defer payment of the principal as long as it conceined to force a collection of the money. In fact, this order will probably be issued by the Mayor this afternoon, it is currently understood, but the statement is not authoritative, that the railroad company holds that, under the terms of the loan, it has the right to defer payment of the principal as long as it chooses, so long as it continues to pay the interest, and that this is the explanation for its failure to send up the cash at the present time. Such an arrangement would be really not a bad one for the city, because the company pays the city 7 per cent, or $90,000 per year, interest, while the city will have to pay but 4 per cent, or $90,000, interest on its new issue for the same amount, which makes a net profit of $35,000 per year to the city.

"Sr. Lours, January St. 1885.

"Dear Mr. De Forest"—That you should have made mistakes in your administration of the parish, as now, perhaps, you can see with after experience, is altogether likely. It would not be strange if it were so, and probably you would yourself be the first to concede it. But in any statement put before me in the matter of your dealing with money. I have seen nothing which led me to think that there was anything in the least dishonest in your action; and as to other allegations in respect to moral fault, I have had no substantial statement placed in my hands up to this time that would affect my condidence in the rectifue of your purposes. I feel bound, on my own motion, to make this statement to you. I am, faithfully yours, "[Signed] "

The question involved was as to the distribution of rents collected by the administrator, and over which Judge Woerner heid he had no jurisdiction. The Court denied the application for the writ.

heving that granite was the proper material for a street of that kind.

At the request of the Mayor, Street Commissioner Turner explained that the Board of Public Improvements would like very well to take up the entire work of reconstruction at once, but, unfortunately, they were not able to do so. He detailed the work which had already been done, and showed that, after Chestnut, Pine. Olive and Locusthad been reconstructed, it was pronosed to knit them together by reconstructing the cross streets. There had been objections, but if they were to stand on ALL THE OPPOSITION, reconstruction would never be accomplished.

Colonel Fiad said that it was true that there was a majority protest against the reconstruction of Leffingwell avenue and, it was on this account that they pushed the work through, so as to see what action the Municipal Assembly would take on their report in favor of the work in spite of the protest Mayor Ewing said that he would take the matter under consideration and make his decision publicater.

O'Donovan Rossa has had a narrow escape from that doom of murder which he has so often tried to visit on innocent men and women, demn the attempt on his life, there will also be a very general regret that the attempt did not ucceed. There is an element of poetic justice All business or news letters or telegrams mies of Ireland, but of women and children who are innocent of all wrong. There is accordingly a certain fitness when the arch instigator of dynamite is made a target of by a rack-brained Sairy Gamp, who adopts the will have little pity or sympathy, for the good reason that he deserves little.

The general contempt and odium excited by such a career as that of Rossa show that public opinion is sound and honest, and in this lies the safety of society, and its security against the dangers threatened by dynamiters, socialists and other enemies. They occupy a great various candidates, with or without their knowldeal of public attention on account of the sensational nature of their proceedings, but the sensations they create are disproportionate to their real importance. WATER GAS.

An Important Opinion on the Subject From Counselor Bell.

Sr. Louis, February 3, 1885. Hon. J. H. Terry, Chairman Committee on Public Improvements: Sin-I have received your letter of the 21st ult.,

They captured a meeting of more moderate Socialists in Avenue A, who had met to protest sgainst dynamite outrages, and a small riot ensued. Later. Schwab was arrested. Everybody will be riad if the man's mouth can be closed. He should tet all the law can give him for inoting a riot; but are should be taken to prevent his trial in the Police Court from assuming the appearance of a solitical presecution." submitting for my opinion certain questions touch ing House Bill No. 878, entitled "An ordinance horizing the St. Louis Gas, Fuel and Power Con authorizing the St. Louis Gas, Fuel and Power Company and its successors to lay pipes in the streets, alloys and public places of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, for the distribution of gas for heating, cooking and illuminating purposes, and for furnishing power, and to repeal ordinance 11,358.

The questions stated in your letter are as follows:

1. Is there any constitutional or legal objection to the form of said bill.

2. Can this bill, if passed, take away from the St. Louis Gas Light Company or the Laclede Gas Light Company the rights to which they are entitled under their charters or any binding contract with the city of St. Louis.

Company the rights to which they are entitled under their charters or any binding contract with the city of St. Louis.

3. Will said bill, it passed, have any effect in destroying or impairing the force of the injunction granted by Judge Lubke in the case of the St. Louis Gas. Fuel and Fower Company, so long as said injunction shall remain unreversed or unmodified?

4. In your opinion, is the passage of said bill necessary to enable the St. Louis Gas, Fuel and Power Company to lay pipes and sell illuminating gas, and enter the field of competition in the municipal territory not covered by said injunction?

Proceding to answer said questions, I remark that the bill referred to grants to the St. Louis Gas, Fuel and Power Company the right to lay pipes and injunction?

Proceding to answer said questions, I remark that the bill referred to grants to the St. Louis Gas, Fuel and Power Company the right to lay pipes in any of the streets, alleys and highways of the city for the purpose of distributing gas for heating, cooking, lighting and power purposes to any and all public and private buildings, or to any person or corporation desiring to use the same. The grant is to take effect at once, and by its terms it covers all the territory embraced within the city of St. Louis. By an ordinance approved April 8, 1880, and numbered 11,388, the Municipal Assembly of the City of St. Louis in said year granted to certain individuals named therein, and their associates, successors and assigns the right to lay pipes in the streets, alleys and highways of the city for the purpose of heating public and private buildings upon the terms and conditions of ordinance 11,348, and the corporation named acquired, it is said, the rights of the grantees under said ordinance.

On August 25, 1888, the charter of said corporation arms of the streets of the streets of the company was proved to the street of said corporation named accorporation named accorporation named accorporation arms of the streets of the streets and private buildings upon quired, it is said, the rights of the grantees under said ordinance.

On August 25, 1883, the charter of said corporation was amended so as to include, in addition to the objects set out in the original articles of association, the manufacture and saie of gas, or other agent for illuminating, fuel, heat and power purposes, and furnishing light and gas to public and private buildings, and to light the streets, alleys and public places of the city.

The City Charter of St Louis does not in express terms authorize the Assembly to grant the use of its streets, alleys, etc., for the purposes mentioned in House bill 378. The charter authorizes the Assembly to provide for lighting the streets, etc.; but no provisions of that character are contained in the bill. By section 251 of the General Corporation no provisions of that character are contained in the bill. By section 251 of the General State Statutes a corporation formed under the general corporation law to supply a city with gas, is empowered to lay its conductors to convey gas through the streets, lanes, alleys, etc., of the city, with the consent of the municipal authorities thereof and under SUCH REASONABLE REGULATIONS.

As said authorities may prescribe. The term "Municipal Authorities" here employed, refers to the law-making power of the city, and in St. Louis it comprises the Mayor and Assembly, and their action on matters of the above character is required to be expressed by an ordinance duly enacted. It will be observed that section 251 of the general statutes above referred to authorizes permission to use the streets of acity for gas pipes to be given only to a corporation formed under the act. The question whether the St. Louis Gas, Fuel and Power Company is a corporation is one that is now being concested in the Circuit Court of this city in a proceeding instituted by the State of Missouri at the relation of its attorney-general, against said company, in which proceeding the State is asking that said company shall be distranchised. The pendency of a proceeding of the above character cannot, perhaps, strictly speaking, constitute a legal objection to the form of House bill 376, and yet it is of some importance and deserves consideration.

If the quempany is successful in the proceeding spoken of, and defeats the State, it will establish its right to the position of one of that class of corporations mentioned in section 951 of the statutes. But, on the other hand, if the State shall obtain a decree dissolving the corporation, then it will be made plain that the city is dealing with an incompetent party, one not authorized by law to take the proposed grant embodied in House bill 376. In other words, the corporate existence of the grantee named in House bill 376 is now being contested in the courts at the instance of the State of Missouri, and the power of the State capital. Gov. Crittenden had nothing as a concerning State affairs, but wishes the ministration of Gov Marmaduke every success. misfortunes.

Is not this subject deserving the attention of our city fathers, legislators, and above all our good church members? Gentlemen, confine your sympathies to home. Respectfully,

J. A. F.

existence of the grantee named in House oil:
stance of the State of Missouri, and the power of the city to grant and the competency of the company to accept the franchises named in House bill 376 are, aside from other objections, dependent on the result of the litigation referred to.

The second question is whether the bill, if adopted, will take away the rights to which the St.
Louis and Laclede Gas Light Companies are entitled under their charters and contract with the city. The bill is undoubtedly an attempted in fringement on the rights of the company first mentioned as the same have been stated and construed by the Supreme Court of Missouri. The St. Louis Gas Light Company was incorporated by a special act of the Legislature in 1837, and was given the exclusive right to manufacture and sell gas in the city of St. Louis.
The charter of the company will expire on January 1, 1890. The Laclede Gas Light Company was incorporated by a special set of the Legislature in 1837, and it was authorized to make and vend gas in a certain part of the city of St. Louis specified and defined in the charter. In 1868 the charter was amended by act of the Legislature, and the company was authorized to make and vend gas that company was authorized to make and vend gas the out the limits of the city. The amendatory act set forth that nothing in the act contained should be construed as affecting the vested rights of the St.
Luis Gas Light Company. In 1873,

The laughing idiot was out in force last night and the fool-killer was in demand. Some few idle-brained people in the audience seemed to think that they were attending a performance of "A leas East" and that the whole play was a farce, at least they seemed to want to think so. Without any reason for it in the world, they put Dunstan down as a comedy character and felt called upon to essay a laugh when he appeared. In the intensest scene of the play at the breaking down of Dunstan, when the house was fairly thrilled and most of it was in tears, a loud guffaw broke out in the upper region which was promptly squelched, but which greatly marred the effect of Couldock's splendid work. This piece of silliness was not entirely confined to the upper regions.

unfortunate woman was taken to the Hudson River State Hospital.

On the Friday night previous to her being taken to the asylum she became a raving maniac, charging every one she met with attempting to kill her. When her attendants left her at the hospital she told them where they could find her diamonds, gold watch, etc. She had a diamond necklace which cost $5,00 and sold it in New York for $2,500. Some of her property found consisted of a gold watch, pair of gold bracelets, two gold shawl pina coral necklace, pair of coral ear-rings and two pairs of gold sleeve buttons. Also gold rings diamond rings, gold ring with solitaire dismond, gold ornaments set with carbuncles, silver jockey club pin marked "A. C.," a slive dog collar marked "Cricket," sliver pichen, salvers, breaktast sets, gold locket with dismonds, gold bracelets with diamonds, etc.

The authorities visited the house of a priving family on Market street, where Mrs. Fields has her baggage stored. Here costly wearing up parel was brought to light. One camel's has shawl was found which Mrs. Field's sister saicost $1,500. Then there was trunks full of valuable linen, wearing apparel, handsom laces, one handsome blue satin dress with bis shoes to match, boxes of elegant handkerchied, boxes of slik hose, etc. There was a hamps three feet high filled with costly silverware devery description, much of it lined with gold. One trunk contained original packages alver was presented to Tom Fields from on orphan asylum, and another set of slive was a present from Judge George Barnard.

Mrs. Fields was in the hospital a year, whe her insantly assumed a chronic form and swas transferred to Willard Asylum, where show is What ultimately became of the valuable property found among Mrs. Field baggage after she was sent to the State Hopital is not known here.

Charles Sanders killed Police Officer Charles Printz in June, 1879, and is how on trial for the first time. One Sunday evening Sanders called at the house of his sister, No. 505 Marion street, and was ordered away by his brother-in-law. He drew a ravolver, and flourished it about, but did not use it then. His sister's father-in-law was sent for. Patrolman Printz came up, and in an attempt to arrest Sanders was shot and instantly killed. Sanders escaped to the Illinois shora, and made his way East, where he was employed in a woolen mill. Afterwards he worked on the northern lakes, running into Chicago, where his identity was disclosed to the police by a woman two years ago, and his arrest followed.

He was at the second inauguration of Jefferson, in 1805, and he saw the British burn the Capitol in 1815. The faces of all the early statesmen are photographed on his memory. He saw the Southern statesmen turn their backs on the Capitol in 1861 and he has lived to see them return. "I was present at the second inauguration of Jefferson," said Captain Armistead, "but I must admit that I do not recollect much about it. I was then only eight years old. I went to the Capitol with my father. I remember Mr. Jefferson when he came into the Senate and took the oath. He was dressed in brown clothes, and he spoke so low that the people could not hear him. I know I got so tired I went to sleep and my father aroused me by a thump on the head.

"ECCLLECTIONS OF MADISON."

"I have a very lively recollection of the inau-guration of James Madison in 1809. The whole population turned out to witness the ceremo-nies. Mr. Madison was escorted to the Capitol by a battalion of cavalry, and he was con-stantly cheered along the line of march. There were 10,000 at the east front of the Capitol, and there was such a pressure to get near the were 10,000 at the east front of the Capitol, and there was such a pressure to get near the platform where Mr. Madison stood that several ladies fainted, and there were some fights between rowdies. After the inauguration Mr. Madison tried to get away from the crowd, but they followed his carriage to the White House, and such cheering I have never heard since. The President was dressed in homespun, and that seemed to create more enthusiasm than anything else. The ladies went wild about Mrs. Madison. One incident at the White House gate caused much excitement. Vhe English feeling had not all died out at that day, and a man named Montgomery, who belonged to a Tory family in Maryland, made himself very odious by saying that Madison ought to be hung. The crowd used him pretty roughly, gouging out an eye and breaking his nose. I saw that same fellow, badly disfigured, at the second inauguration of Madison.

"The British having burned the Capitol, the inauguration of James Monroe, in 1817, took place in Congress Hall. His inaugural speech was made from an elevated platform east of the Capitol, which was then being rebuilt. Mr. Monroe rodo in a carriage drawn by two white horses, followed by an immense procession. There were two batteries of artillery in line.

inanguration of Jackson in 1829. It seemed that every bully and desperado in the United States had suddenly come to the Capital. One-half the men had their pantaloons in their boots and some of them wore pistols in full view. Washington was small then and the hotels and boarding-houses could not hold the crowds. It was the biggest swarm of people ever seen here before, most of the visitors being from the South and West, Tennessee being especially well represented. Every man carried a hickory stick, and some women wore necklaces made of small hickory nuts fancifully painted. One lady had a bonnet made of hickory leaves, and several horses in the procession had hickory-bark bridles. Such yelling you never heard. It was like a whole tribe of Indians let loose on the streets of Washington. Gen Jackson seemed to enjoy these outlandish demonstrations. He kept his hat off and smiled at the crowd of yellers. 'Go in, Andy; we put you there!' and 'Givo' em n—1, Andy!' were some of the expressions heard, all of which the General smiled at." give the people a cordial welcome at the Executive Mansion. Several hogsheads of orange punch were accordingly prepared for the crowd, ice cream and wines for the ladies, and everybody invited. "There must have been ten thousand people around the White House," said Captain Armistead. "It was reality a howling mob, the greater or part of it drunk and disorderly. The backwoods rowdy was there in his glory. About fifty colored servants were engaged in dipping out the orange punch and serving it in tumblers on waiters, but the crowd was impatient and cursed and yelled. Some of the waiters were knocked over and the tumblers broken. Several of the negro servants were knocked own. The carpets were wet with punch. One man struck another with a hickory cane. Men jumped upon the damask-covered chairs with their muddy boots and called for whisky. There was nobody to keep order and confusion reigned. A military officer in uniform came into the crowd and tried to restore order, but he was hooted at. Every time a negro appeared with something to drink there was a rush for him and he was almost mobbed. Some smoked cigars and there chewed tobacco and spat on the carpet and against the walls. Finally several tubs of punch were carried outside the house and the roughs could be gotten out of the White House. That was a lively year for boarding house keepers. AN EXCITING TIME.

But the inauguration of General Harrison, in 1841, is, according to Captain Armistead, the most exciting event of that kind that has yet marked the history of this country. There was not so much rowdyism as marked the coming of Jackson, in 1829, or the hoodlumism that make the history of this country. There was not so much rowdyism as marked the coming of Jackson, in 1829, or the hoodlumism that the state of Jackson, in 1829, or the hoodlumism that ushered in Polk, in 1845, but the popular uprising was unprecedented and the victorious demonstrations tremendous. The day recorded the restitution of the Whigs to power, and the disguist of the overthrown Democracy was well typified in the undignified conduct of the outgoing Van Buren, who refused to appear at the inauguration or to meet Harrison.

"The day was the loviest I ever saw in Washington," and Captain p. rmistead. "I was opposite the residence of Colonel Seaton, as an advantage of cavalry and mounted his milk white horse. He was a magnificent looking man on horseback. He took his place in a hollow square of cavalry and rode that way to the Capitol. Fing were flying and drums were beating everywhere. keepers. Many of the people who came to the inauguration were after offices and they stayed here for weeks, some of them for months.

"The inauguration of Martin Van Buren in 1837 did not create much excitement, though there was a great crowd here. The procession was the longest and most orderly that had ever been seen in Washington. There was much more curiosity to see 'Old Hickory' than Van Buren. The two left the White House together in a splendid carriage which had been made from the wood of the old frigate Constitution and presented to President Jackson by the Democrate of his friends were there. There was a strong feeling against Calhoun nor none of his friends were there. There was a strong feeling against Calhoun at that time. The Jackson Democrats called him 'Cataline,' and after the inauguration acrowd went down Pennsylvania avenue foining the chorus of a song, the exact words of which I may not remember, but it was some thing like this:

"There was a gallant eater of red and blazing fremed was a strong feeling against calhoun thing like this:

New York Anarchists Attempt to Capture a Socialist Meeting.

New York, February 8.—The members of the Social Labor party and the Anarchists, otherwise known as the "Most-Schwab Crowd," have fallen out, and yesterday evening they had an old-fash-oned fight. A short time ago the Social Labor party called a meeting for the purpose of raising funds to assist the Socialists in primaries to elect their representatives to the Reichsrath. The Antheir representatives to the Reichsrath. The An-archists heard of this and when the Socialists arrived at the place of meeting, they found the platform and immediate vicinity packed with the Anarchists, who forthwith proceeded to capture the meeting and preach blood and revolution. The Socialists called for another mass meeting to be held last evening at the Concordia Assembly rooms,

AGAINST THE DYNAM TE EXPLOSIONS in London. Mr. Jones, the editor of the Volks-Zeitung, and his associates drafted a section of resolutions, which they handed to Edward King to submit to the meeting for its approval. The resolutions say that the corrupt tools of capitalistic tyranuy in England and America were rushing to denounce the irreconcilable and irrepressible patriots of Irish emancipation by fastening upon them the responsibility for the recent explosions in London, for the express purpose of poisoning the mass of the working class against them. The responsibility however, the circular went on, "should be "laid upon the shoulders of the blind and blundering brutality of the governments that deprive their dependents of all civilized methods of agitation and education, by crushing the rights of free speech and free press."

The Socialists, according to their circular, did not share in the blind reaction of feeling among the socialed, moderate friends of Ireland, and believed that "at the root of all political and economical oppression, lay the enslavement of labor by capital, which could only be broken by the united action. Several victous kicks were made at the Captain while he was struggling to free himself from the chairs and rise, and when he got on his feet he saw Officer Rott prostrate and a man who was on top of him pummelting him. A blow from the Captain's club stopped this amusement, and Captain McCullough, mounting a table on the platform, ciamored for order. One man attempted to speak, but Captain McCullough silenced him and cried out for order. In the rear of the hall Schwab's mob appeared to be organizing a charge, and cries of "Go for the policet" came from them. The Captain drew a revolver and threatened to shoot any one who should attempt to mount the platform. The other officers drew their weapons and held the crowd in check until thirty policensen and Sergeant Gallagher, who had been summoned by Detective Robinson, burst isso the hall.
